Study Tours

Friday November 27, 8.30am – 2.30pm

New Developments in Services for Children

Join Dr Alan Campbell who will facilitate discussion on the links between research, training and emerging practice as you observe and explore emerging and innovative service delivery models for working with children at 3 locations in Sydney's west. FRSA Deputy Director Steve Hackett will also accompany this tour group.

This tour will visit:

Supporting Children after Separation Program - SCASP (Unifam) – Parramatta - SCASP is a relatively new service model that has three main components including child consultation, short term individual and family therapeutic services and a suite of community education programs for local services and schools.

Children's Contact Service - CCS (Relationships Australia NSW) – Blacktown - The CCS provides an emotionally and physically safe place for children. CCS staff work within a framework of child focussed and child informed practice. A visit to this busy service will showcase a holistic model operating within a cottage in a regular suburban setting.

R.E.A.C.T.T. (BCS – Lifecare) - Bankstown - BCS LifeCare has developed and evaluated a new psycho-educational anger management group called R.E.A.C.T.T. that utilises a unique collaboration between traditional youth-workers and clinical counsellors. The program is unique with a whole-of-family approach to assessment and screening, provision of pre- and post- group care, and a cross disciplinary approach.

Strengths Based Approaches to Family Support

Join Judi Geggie who will facilitate discussion on the links between research, training and emerging practice as you observe and explore strengths based approaches to family support work across 3 locations in Sydney. FRSA Communications Officer Bonnie Montgomery will also accompany this tour group.

This tour will visit:

Newpin Family Centre (Uniting Care Burnside) - Bidwill - The Newpin focus is on supporting the relationship between parents and children. Parents attend parenting education and therapeutic support groups and have opportunities for hands on supported play with their children. Staff work beside parents to provide honest feedback and encouragement identifying positive parent / child interactions.

Mudgin-gal (Mudgin-gal and RANSW) – Redfern -Mudgin-gal is an Indigenous family support service based in the Redfern area and offering services to Aboriginal women and families for over 17 years. This holistic project promotes healthy family relationships, reduces family violence and child abuse by training and supporting Aboriginal family mentors to provide guidance and support to young Aboriginal parents.

Partnerships in Early Childhood (PIEC - Benevolent Society) – Waterloo - PIEC links families from high-density inner city housing to support services and programs by utilising childcare centres as a 'bridge' for families to other services.

Working with Invisible Groups of Men

Join Andrew King who will facilitate discussion on the links between research, training and emerging practice as you uncover a number of programs working with invisible or hard to reach groups of men and fathers in Sydney. This study tour will explore men and family relationship programs that attract men's involvement, when other programs find it difficult. FRSA Executive Director Sam Page will also accompany this tour group.

This tour will visit:

Lifestart Program for Dads who have a child with a disability – (Lifestart Centre) - Pennant Hills. This long established program has been running regular workshops or playgroups for Dads over many years. The programs provided alternates between playgroup experiences and/or Dad's workshops. Staff will speak about the dad's workshops. This group of men is often invisible and families where a child has a disability are more likely to experience family separation.

Dad's and Kids Playgroups – (The Infants Home) – Ashfield. Strengths based focus on positive interaction and parenting skills. These groups are jointly facilitated by participating fathers and early childhood educators and have had a very successful established program running dad's and kids playgroups for over 10 years.

The UTurn program – (CatholicCare Sydney) - Enmore - Focus: DV and Anger Management Programs, working with the Culturally and Linguistically Diverse community. The UTurn program is a 15 week course designed to reduce the incidence of domestic violence. The safety and best interests of children underpins the model, with a focus on child development and the experience of the child in the relationship.
